KARBON ZERO EDUCATES UNM LAW STUDENT'S ON WIND DEVELOPMENT

Albuquerque, NM — Karbon Zero spoke to a group of students from the University of New Mexico, School of Law last Saturday regarding legal developments and regulatory actions in the wind energy industry. The talk, led by Anthony Apodaca, VP of Projects, and Daniel St. Germain, GIS Director emphasized current wind energy developments in New Mexico. The students also asked questions about the type of work performed as a wind energy integrator. The talk culminated with a brief overview and discussion of the High Lonesome Wind Ranch, including highlighting the efforts of the many people who helped make the project a success.
